Choice of Software

- Microsoft Outlook Express
- Microsoft Outlook – part of MS Office
- Mozilla Thunderbird
- Eudora – free (sponsored) version
- Opera
- The Bat
- Pegasus
- Webmail - various

Outlook Express

- Email & Newsgroups
- No calendar
- No option to download headers only
- No spam filter
- Lack of rules setting
- Free with every PC
- Everyone uses it!

Outlook

- Part of Office Suite
- Calendar included
- Contact manager
- Spam filtering
- Expensive standalone
- Easy signature design
- Easy rules creation

Mozilla Thunderbird

- Free software
- Easy to move from OE
- Saved searches
- Can download headers only
- Spam filtering

Eudora (Sponsored mode)

- Only free if you put up with adverts
- £30 to buy
- Some features missing from free version
- Variable ability to transfer from Outlook
- Spam filtering costs extra
- Excellent search facilities

Opera

- Uses web interface
- Easy to setup accounts
- Pop up alert for new mail
- No import from Outlook
- Spam filter poor
- Handy to have single app for browsing & mail

The Bat

- Costs £24
- No images at all
- Similar to Outlook interface
- Macro creation
- Easy setup including imports
- Too techie

Pegasus

- Free program
- Email setup awkward
- No previews
- Business focus – not POP
- Been around for ever
- Very secure
- Can be used as a server

Webmail Alternatives

- Hotmail /MSN
- Yahoo Mail
- GMail (or GoogleMail)

- Always available via browser
- More spam (Hotmail & Yahoo)
- Less easy to pick up via email client

Recommended

1. For least effort, stick to Outlook Express 6
2. If you have Office 2003, use Outlook 2003
3. Give Thunderbird a try, it's easy
4. Try Opera if you want to combine with browsing

This Weeks Winner!

The screenshot shows the Mozilla Thunderbird interface with the 'Deleted Items' folder selected. The left sidebar shows the folder hierarchy, including 'deangsmith@...nternet.com' and 'Deleted Items (14)'. The main pane displays a list of deleted messages with columns for Subject, From, Sender, and Date.
